

The story of creation and redemption is encoded in the Hebrew alphabet. Each letter speaks of God's intention for humanity—His pursuit, His commandments, the bride's revelation, and the sacrifice of the Son. These truths existed before creation itself.

What Was Missing in This Catechism?

Reflect on what you've been taught in church, or perhaps by evangelists—whether in sermons or books. What is the key feature that is absent from this message?

THERE IS NO CONDEMNATION.

From the very beginning, there is no condemnation. His love for you precedes creation itself. The Lamb was slain before the foundations of the earth, and from before creation, God's plan for your redemption was already in motion. There is no condemnation in His love—only the promise of life and restoration through Christ.

2ndBook.org
bob@2ndBook.org

When they understood through the marriage they became a new creation
 The Son of God taught the promise of the Father
 The Son of Man fulfilled the promise by becoming flesh
 He spoke in parables and riddles
 He exchanged his righteousness for our sin
 The Son of God died and rose again revealing that his word returns with an increase His completed work and revelation is your new life
 The Son of God died and finished his declared works
 The Son of Man died and was restored to glory
 All prophecy was completed Judgment was ended
 We became co-heirs with Christ (four-pronged shin w ).

In pre-600 AD Hebrew, before the introduction of vowel markings (nikud), words derived their meaning from the letters themselves, each letter carrying its unique significance. This ancient form of Hebrew reveals layers of meaning that aren't immediately obvious to modern readers. The very alphabet seems to communicate profound truths about God, His creation, and His eternal plan.
 For example, Adam's name (אָדָם) is in the word 'ground' (אָדָם). 'adamah', Adam, in this context, had Spirit (רוּחַ) and blood (דָּם). The word for 'blood' (דָּם) also reflects a commandment (דָּם) fulfilled by the Son (אָדָם), pointing to a deeper theological truth as a metaphor of the cross used 4000 years before it is defined by the cross.
 Since God spoke creation into existence and used letters to form words, the alphabet predates creation itself. Every letter has its own meaning, and when read in order, they form a message from God—one that reaches back before creation.
The Alphabet as a Message
 X God spoke and created the heavens and the earth.
 H He revealed to man that he pursued them
 with a command which they did not understand it distinguished them
 as the bride

